The true significance of the house is directly related to Andrew Ellicott, who lived here from 1801-1813. Ellicott is nationally known as the first United States Surveyor General under George Washington. He reconstruct ted and completed the design for the Nation's Capitol in Washington; completed surveys of the Mason-Dixon Line and a portion of the U.S.-Canadian border; and laid out the cities of Erie, Meadville and Franklin. He further served as Secretary of the Pennsylvania Land Office when he moved to Lancaster in 1801 and was also advisor to Captain Merriweather Lewis in preparation for the Lewis and Clark expedition. He was a trustee of Franklin and Marshall College and later appointed as a mathematics professor at West Point where he died and was buried in 1820. An exhibit in the Smithsonian Institution depicts Ellicott at work, his map of Washington, and surveying instruments.
